

I-S

THAT'S
breaking news?

it's free!
every week

I-S MAGAZINE NO. 501 FRIDAY, MARCH 19, 2010
www.is-magazine.com

tech Google phone
nightlife Smart bars
film Whip It!
dining Nice buns

Brown-bagging again? You can do better

Zhou's Kitchen

Homestyle Chinese food gets the Tung Lok treatment at this mid-priced eatery.

The deal: Multi-course lunch menus for four start from $98++. What you get depends on which menu you order but you can expect a starter (like a barbecued meat platter or soup or roast Peking duck), and at least six other substantially portioned dishes, including dessert.

Hang on, it gets even better: On weekends and public holidays, its Far East Square outlet has an all-you-can-eat a la carte buffet priced at $23.80++. A minimum of four people is required and you get to choose from over 50 items, including hot and cold appetizers, dim sum, soup, stir-fries, noodles and dessert.

Various outlets. Try #01-01 Far East Square, 7-13 Amoy St., 6877-1123.